

Mayor Wm. Funk Welcomes Teachers Institute Visitors

Tinley Park entertained the annual Teachers' Institute last Friday March 16. Visiting teachers spent the morning inspecting the building and class work, and in the afternoon Dean R. A. Kent of Northwestern University spoke on "The Classroom Recitation". County Superintendent S. J. Tobin was a speaker also.

The light and cheerful classroom of the Tinley Park school was a very appropriate setting for the model recitations given there during the morning session. The cleanliness of the building, even to the white and starched curtains, told one that the children and teachers were living up to their slogan "live today that we may be healthy tomorrow." The pictures on the walls were few but well chosen; copies from old masters. The blossoming plants and trailing vines gave the classrooms and halls a very homey atmosphere.

Chorus work in the seventh and eighth grades was unusually fine. Helen Sandege, the teacher, demonstrated how geography should be taught. The lesson was a review of the United States. The young folks not only knew the products of their own country, but could locate where the same product grew in all other countries of the world, and could give the influence of climate and soil.

Frances Morgan's third and fourth grades sang "Tinley Park Will Shine" with all the joy that can come from clean, healthy children. From the appearance of their health chart covered with blue and gold stars, they intend to make the village shine physically.

The room's part in the program was a demonstration of silent reading. The assignment was definite. It was well followed by the children and the questions well answered.

In the primary room the atmosphere was pleasing, cheerful, and the children were interested. The attitude between teacher and children was excellent.

In this room Jean Morningstar, the teacher, was a silent factor, creating an atmosphere, controlling the situation and yet not a part of it. A child took charge of the health inspection, appointed on account of his own cleanliness. The little folks showed a great deal of power in their ability to apply their phonics to both script and printed stories.

The assignments for seat work were written upon the board. The children read the instructions and followed them, drawing an Eskimo house with a little door, without asking a question.

County Superintendent Tobin spoke to the children about the new health charts, urging them to learn habits and stating that the new school "home project" No. 15, is health. Three gold stars on the health record gives one achievement credit.

At noon Mrs. E. J. Swisher, president of the Tinley Park P. T. A. announced that lunch was being served by that organization in the community building. Covers were laid for 90 and St. Patrick's day decorations were carried out.

After a pleasant hour with the ladies of the P. T. A. the teachers returned to the school assembly hall where Mayor William Funk and Mrs. E. J. Swisher gave them a formal welcome. Frances Morgan sang "Can't Remember" with Miss Morningstar as accompanist. Dean Kent gave a very interesting talk on the "Classroom Recitation." Mrs. Morgan sang "The End of a Perfect Day" and the meeting adjourned.

Mr. Morningstar, the Rock Island rangements for the 4:30 flier to stop agent at Tinley Park had made arrangements and take on the northbound teach-

THE WHITE STORE ADDS 7100 ft. MORE FLOOR SPACE

Above is a picture of the popular White Store in Joliet well known to many readers of the News-Bulletin. This store under the energetic management of J. Cohen, has grown rapidly. Nine years ago this store only had a frontage of 14 1-2 feet and only one floor, while today this store occupies 2 floors and frontage of 101 1-2 feet. This space has also been outgrown and now 7100 more square feet are being added.

The grocery department has been remodelled and enlarged. Good service and good quality goods are the big factors back of the White Store's popularity and phenomenal growth and expansion.

The White Store is known to almost every rural home in this section.

Bolton's Speech Being Repudiated

Former Postmaster Hugh Bolton of Joliet, has aroused a hornets nest as the result of a statement he made in a political speech at Mokena Monday night when he referred to the Walter Fisher case and stated he was instrumental in getting a government reward for Mrs. Fisher. The Postal department has repudiated this and other statements Mr. Bolton made that night. If any one is interested in getting the true facts of this case they can get them by writing to the postal department.

Small Rally At Mokena March 28

A Small rally will be held in the parlors of the St. John Evangelical church at Mokena on Wednesday night. There will be an array of able speakers and free entertainment. A special invitation is extended to the ladies to attend.

The association meeting was in charge of Catherine McCaughy and Nellie G. McMahon, educational supervisors in Districts 5 and 6. Among the guests were Clarence M. Callahan, Robert E. Downs, E. J. Tobin, county superintendent of schools, Glen Page, Bert Fulton, a member of the Tinley Park school board and Mrs. H. E. Smith.

When complimented on the excellent condition of his school building Mr. Fulton said "It is due to the splendid co-operation the Tinley Park P. T. A. gives the school board."

Rousing Emerson Meeting Held At Mokena Mon.

What is said to have been the best Emerson meeting held thus far in Will county was held at the St. John Evangelical church parlors in Mokena Monday night. There was an extra large array of speakers and the meeting continued for over 3 hours.

Attorney A. H. Krusemark of Joliet was the first speaker and gave a real political talk in the interest of the candidacy of Louis L. Emerson for governor. In the course of his address he showed where Gov. Small had not helped the farmers when they needed help badly during the time the testing of cattle was on and showed how a certain politician in Will County had been more than repaid when his cattle failed to stand the test. Attorney Krusemark pointed out that inasmuch as Gov. Small has failed to keep his pledges the farmers cannot take stock in the farm relief measures he is using as part of his platform. The interest suit case was also touched on and the question raised if Small did not owe this money, why did he pay part of it back? Another point brought out was that Small did not pay this money out of his pocket, but that every state employee was assessed a certain amount which was used to pay off the money the state demanded. Small's hard road propaganda was hard hit. It was shown that a certain amount of hard roads had been built before Small was ever elected governor. Attorney Krusemark said it was foolish to say that hard road building or work on the deep waterway would stop if Small is not nominated and declared even more roads would be built if Emerson is nominated and elected.

The speaker further declared it was high time that Illinois shake off the autocratic rule that one man is seeking to foster on the state.

Mr. Beneto spoke in the interests of Attorney General Carlstrom for renomination.

Don C. Hall of Mokena, candidate for state representative, gave a very illuminating discourse on the rotten political conditions obtaining in Illinois and said if some of the remarks which are made here about political back scratching, etc., were made in Wisconsin, the party making them would be subject to arrest.

Mrs. Combs of Tinley Honored

Mrs. Wallace B. Combs, a member of the Woman's Roosevelt Republican Club, will attend the Candidate Luncheon held in the Florentine room of the Congress Hotel in Chicago Friday March 30th. All republican candidates for State and County offices have been invited to be present, so that the members of the Club may hear and meet the men and women for whom they will vote on Primary Day April 10th.

Further details of this luncheon with excerpts from the short talks given by the candidates, will be reported in next week's News-Bulletin.

Norman Roth to Run Independent

The many friends and supporters of Norman Roth of New Lenox who was defeated in his race for the nomination of highway commissioner of New Lenox Township at the caucus last Saturday, have urged him to come out as a candidate for this office on the independent ticket and after thinking the matter over Mr. Roth has decided to give in to the wishes of his friends and give them another opportunity to vote for him.

A story is making the rounds to the effect that Mr. Roth is not a tax payer. Mr. Roth has been a farm owner and tax payer of New Lenox township for over 30 years. Even tho he sold his farm recently he is just as much interested in the town of New Lenox as ever before he says and feels that he has as much right to run for this office as tho he were still on the farm.

Mr. Roth as an independent candidate for the office mentioned will be voted on at the annual town election, Tuesday April 3rd.

CARD OF THANKS

I heartily thank all those who gave me their support at the New Lenox town caucus last Saturday.

CARD OF THANKS

To the people of Frankfort Twp.

I wish to thank the people who were out and made our caucus a success and selected me as their choice as highway commissioner on the People's Party ticket. I am seeking re-election for a second term, for what I have done for Frankfort Township.

EMIL D. CAPPEL, Commissioner

Wm. Kampe Is Named Supervisor At Hot Caucus

What is said to have been the largest caucus ever held in Frankfort township within the memory of the oldest resident was the one held in Mokena last Saturday afternoon when both the Republican and People's Party caucuses were held at the same time. The Republican caucus was held in the parlors of the St. John church. Fully over 500 voters attended both meetings.

The big fight on the Republican side centered on the supervisorship of Frankfort township. Ona E. McGovney of Mokena and Wm. Kampe of Frankfort were the opposing candidates. The nomination was made by ballot and a total of 278 votes were cast with the following result:

Wm. Kampe 176
Ona E. McGovney 102

Kampe's plurality 74

The remaining candidates were nominated by acclamation as follows: highway commissioner George Hauser; justice of the peace to fill vacancy, Richard Hensel; school trustee Jacob Bauch.

A number of county candidates were present and made addresses. A collection was taken to defray the expense of the rent for the church parlors and a donation of $10 over the rental cost was made to the church fund.

Fully as many voters attended the People's Party caucus as were at the Republican meeting. The People's Party met at the village hall. The office of highway commissioner of Frankfort township was the big issue. The candidates were Emil D. Cappel, present incumbent and C. H. Warning former commissioner. The nomination was made by ballot and was as follows:

Emil D. Cappel 154
C. H. Warning 148

Cappel's plurality 106

Henry Geuther present town clerk was re-nominated by acclamation. These candidates will be voted on at the regular township election to be held on Tuesday, April 3rd. It is reported that C. H. Warning will be a candidate for the office of highway commissioner on the independent ticket.

Oram Nominated At New Lenox

In New Lenox township the regular town ticket caucus was held in the Grange hall and was attended by nearly 500 voters. The big issue was the nomination of a candidate for the office of highway commissioner. The fight was between Ernest Oram who has held this office for 16 years and Norman Roth who has been a resident of New Lenox township for over 30 years. Oram re-

County Board Approves Bond Issue Program

The much discussed Will county bond issue road program as presented to the Board of Supervisors on Thursday by the bond issue committee of which supervisor Fred Francis of New Lenox is chairman, was accepted by a vote of 43 to 5.

Wolf road which has been referred to on a number of occasions as "the disputed road" and which it had been reported was stricken off the bond issue map recently, is one of the roads included on the map, which together with the county board's resolution of adoption of the road program goes to the department of Public Works and Buildings at Springfield for final approval, after which a special election will be called to submit the proposition to the voters of Will County.

Here is the plan of roads in this community in which the readers of the News-Bulletin are most interested in:

There are 25 roads designated on the map, Wolf road being number 23. The Wolf road is designated on the bond issue map as beginning at the Lincoln Highway thence running north thru the village of Mokena to the Will and Cook county line to meet the paving of Wolf road now being done by Cook county.

Another route of vital interest to Cook county is to come out on the Maple road from Joliet and run east to a point two miles west from the Wolf road and then turn northeast to the Cook county line to meet the Southwest highway. This is route number 8.

The highway running north and south thru the village of New Lenox is also on the bond issue program and is number 19. This road is to be paved under the road program from the Maple road south to Manhattan.

All the roads around Joliet are to be built first and it is said that it may take another bond issue to construct the last roads on the map of which Wolf road is one.

Students Visit The News-Bulletin Plant

The 7th grade pupils of the Mokena public school visited the News-Bulletin plant last Tuesday afternoon. They were in charge of their teacher, Miss Clara Goetz. They were shown all the interesting features of the printing and newspaper office. They were highly interested in the work of the linotype and were much surprised to find how modern a printing plant Mokena has. Visitors are always welcome at the News-Bulletin office.

ceived 327 votes and Roth 108. The following candidates were nominated by acclamation: for town clerk, Ceward Batson; assessor Joseph Kestel; school trustee Henry Stein.

Ohio Village Reborn

Ohio's old town of Schoenbrunn, two miles southeast of Cleveland, is the state's newest village as well, for it now has one house, which is more than it has had in more than a century. This structure is a copy of the log cabin built by Rev. David Zeisberger, Moravian missionary, who founded the settlement May 3, 1772. By August of that year, Schoenbrunn became a thriving settlement of some sixty houses of hewn timber. Then the site was lost for 146 years, being discovered in 1923 by excavation.

A survey shows that children on the farms of New Zealand are taller and heavier than children in the cities.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

The captain studied the papers again.

"Pulled a boner bringing that fool Besser on board," he said softly. "What am I to do with him?"

"Sorry, but I had to bring him. I couldn't let him go. He had been snooping about, and I didn't know how much he had picked up."

"Why didn't you?" The captain's gentle voice trailed off suggestively.

"Two reasons, and both d-d good ones. We couldn't get rid of him in that cove. You ought to know that—My God, I'll never forget poor Blakely, and how he kept coming in on every wave."

"That cove, I tell you, is a trap. The tide gets nothing out, brings everything back—Five times Blakely came in—the men cursing and praying—crossing themselves—And at the last we had to keep him there in the shack till he rotted. I tell you, rotted."

"Besides," he said, "that was my bargain with you. I told you in the beginning that I stuck at murder, and I still do. D-d if I'll kill them unless I have to."

"A good preacher was lost in you, Ronnie," the captain said affectionately. "You've got a conscience—or a weak stomach—same thing. Why, what's one crook more or less in a world full of 'em?"

"Blakely was no more a crook than I am," Ronald muttered doggedly.

The captain laughed jovially. "Well, bless us, boy, what else are you? Come, have more coffee. You've got the blues."

He touched the bell. The captain glanced at the list of names in his hand. "Bring Mr. Rivers," he said to the seaman who answered.

"There's a reward of three thousand for him, but he had plenty on him, so I said five."

One of the men from the Little club came in, his hat in his hand. The two officers nodded to him curtly, without offering him a chair. He laid his papers before the captain.

"John D. Rivers. London. Passports, visas, birth certificate, everything O. K.—Ninety dollars, Mr. Rivers. I understand you are going home on this old freighter because of the economy—Sorry we can give you no better accommodations," he said suavely, "but we do not cater to passengers, really—Fare, ninety dollars."

The man Rivers without a word counted out five thousand from his wallet, and laid it on the table.

Ingram handed him a receipt for the money.

One after another the men from the Little club were ushered into the captain's room, their papers examined with great attentiveness, their money taken—usually fat rolls of bills for which a form receipt was given in exchange.

When the last man had gone out the captain figured swiftly on the back of an envelope for a moment. Then, detaching a small amount from the heap in his open drawer, he counted out a portion of it, and put it in a section of the wall safe beside the desk.

"One thousand eight dollars for the good ship Roger Williams," he said. "Twelve stalwart passengers at ninety dollars a head."

The rest of the money he tucked quickly into a steel box, and touching a secret spring in his table, fitted the box within it, closed it again. "And for the brains and blood behind the Roger Williams—a wee mite more," he said laughingly.

They smoked for a moment in silence. The captain poured out fresh coffee. "The papers were good," the captain said in a tone of satisfaction. "He's getting better and better—We may need to keep a friendly oversight on him. He's getting almost too good. Well, let's turn in. I'm tired. You look like the face on the bar-room floor, Ronnie. Cheer up. Things are looking up to heaven. That takes care of everything, doesn't it?"

One instant they both paused, on the edges of their chairs, for a final pull at their cigarettes. And in that moment Gay wriggled out from beneath the bunk silently and took one firm but fearful step toward them.

"It—doesn't take care of—me," she stammered weakly.

CHAPTER XIII

"Gay Delane!" The exclamation was Ronald Ingram's.

Even in that terrible moment Gay was quick to observe the sinister change that came over the captain's face. His air from one of rich well-being became portentous and greatly still. The soft brown eyes receded into themselves, became fathomlessly deep and dangerous. His lips showed a straight red line between the black of his mustache and beard. One quick appraising look he gave her, a look that swept her from leather boots to leather cap, and then he turned about in his chair and looked at Ronald Ingram.

His voice was a dangerous purr. "This, Mr. Ingram, is a flagrant infraction of rules, as you know very well. You have deliberately disobeyed the one order to which I have held every one around me in all of my various sailings—No women aboard is my rule—and no women aboard applies right now." There was a slight return to something of suavity beneath his anger as he turned to Gay.

"Madame, I am sorry. I can understand that a woman may have quite as good reasons as a man for wishing to sail without the fanfare of publicity. The ladies, madame, have my sympathy, but they do not sail on my ship." He bowed mockingly, the red lips curving into a derisive smile.

"Sorry, very sorry, but law's law. The charm of your presence, the warmth of your beauty, the brightness of your eye, serve to strengthen me in my conviction that women play the devil on shipboard. Sorry, I have never had a woman aboard, and—"

"But—I am aboard," said Gay faintly.

"You are, yes. Worse luck to all of us. But you won't be very long. Where are your papers?"

"Sir," interrupted Ronald Ingram quickly, "I beg your pardon, but you do not understand. Miss—the lady is—not a fugitive. She is my fiancée. We love each other—we—we could not bear to be separated—"

The captain's dark eyes were still boring into Gay's face, and in that instant Ronald was able to flash her a warning signal with his eyes. Quickly she realized that he wished to help her, and the warm gratitude in the look she gave him might easily have been misconstrued by one who thought she loved him.

The captain's eyes had not wavered from her face. "How much do you know of our—business ventures?" he demanded curtly.

And then, in hope forgetting to seek advice in Ronald's pleading eyes, she blundered into her great error. Her desire was to intimidate the captain, show him her power, make him respect her for her knowledge, and she cried triumphantly:

"Everything! I know everything—Smuggling Chinese, forged passports—Yes, the murder of poor Blakely—everything!"

It was no less than murder that showed in the captain's black eyes then. His voice was a whisper, the whisper of a wild animal panting.

"So! Everything." His eyes turned slowly upon Ronald Ingram. And Gay, following his glance, seeing his fury, seeing Ronald's consternation at her revelation, realized the gravity of her mistake.

"Oh, no," she gasped. "Oh, no." The captain's eyes traveled slowly that deadly trail from Ronald's eyes to hers again.

"Yes?" he purred.

Gay pulled herself together. "He did not tell me," she disclaimed quickly. "He told me you were just independent shippers, running a tramp steamer wherever you could get a cargo."

"Who told you—everything—then? Not—Moy Sen?"

"Certainly not." But she gained confidence, strengthened by the firm timbre of her own voice. "But it was Moy Sen who first aroused my suspicions. I live in the cottage next to the clubhouse. Moy Sen watched me—and I caught him. That was curious. And then I put things together. Why Ronald went away so suddenly,

Why he had purchased the clubhouse, how Blakely's body came into the cove—I put everything together and it was strange. So—I—just snooped."

A quick flash of amusement lightened the black fury of the captain's face. "Oh! You snooped!"

"Yes, I—I loved him, and I had to find out from the piazza floor and crawled under and peeked through the oilcloth over the window and—I saw everything."

"And knowing—everything—still you took a chance and came along?"

"I could not bear to—to let him go away—into such danger—alone. Besides—it is all your fault," she said accusingly, but there was no very convincing quality in the accusation. "You are older than he, you are magnetic, powerful. You led him into it."

The captain laughed softly at that, but frowned again in a moment.

"This is a devilish kettle of fish," he grumbled anxiously to Ronald. "Where are her papers?"

"She has no papers, sir. She only decided to come tonight."

"How do you expect to get her ashore?"

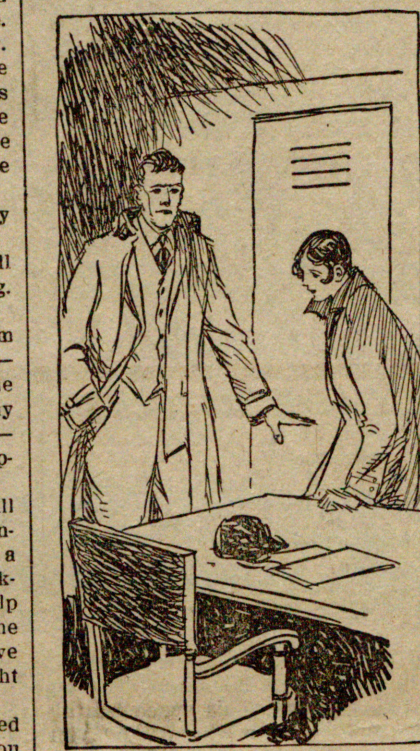

"She won't go ashore, sir. She is an American citizen, so am I. She will stay on board when we are in foreign ports. And when we come back we can land her at the island—I couldn't come away—without her."

The captain lighted a cigarette, and bit the end of it thoughtfully. His mildness of manner had returned.

"I'm not blaming him, you understand, Miss—Miss—"

"Gay is my name, Gay Delane."

"Gay. That's the idea. Like that. Call you Gay then, right off, since you'll sort of be my mate-in-law as you might say. You'll have to keep in your cabin, out of sight of the men—"

"Why Do Women Have to Blab Everything They Know"

You understand how men are, miss, when they're at sea, no women, you know—goes to their heads—nice chaps, our men, fine chaps—but the thought of a woman goes right to their heads."

"I—I wouldn't cause trouble for anything," Gay said quickly, and hope sprang into her heart again. "I am sorry I came. I see now how foolish it was. But things just—went to my head, too, I suspect—Perhaps you'd be so just put me off and send me ashore in a small boat."

"I'd like to," the captain said pleasantly, and a smile showed in the dark mild eyes. "I'd like to first rate. But it's too late now. No, you'll have to stick it out with the Roger Williams this trip. Keep her in your cabin. Ronald, until—You'll have to be married! That's the dope. The men don't have much regard for women, but they show some respect to a wife."

Gay flashed a frightened, appealing look at Ronald. Married!

"The captain marry us," he stammered. "At sea. Captain's privilege. Yes, that would be—best." But he did not meet her eyes.

"Yes. And me, too, keep her in your cabin, and out of sight." The captain's eyes wandered to Gay again, warmly appraising, slowly approving. "Maybe she'd better stay here. My cabin is safe enough, for woman, child or beast. I'll keep her for you."

"No. She'll be all right in my cabin—She—she is very nervous; I—I must console her."

"I could console her," said the captain, smiling broadly.

Gay flashed a frightened, appealing look at Ronald. Married!

"The captain marry us," he stammered. "At sea. Captain's privilege. Yes, that would be—best." But he did not meet her eyes.

Gay flashed a frightened, appealing look at Ronald. Married!

"The captain marry us," he stammered. "At sea. Captain's privilege. Yes, that would be—best." But he did not meet her eyes.

Ronald answered with a straight defiant stare. He stepped quickly to the door and opened it, then, after a moment's pause while he waited for a seaman to pass through the corridor, he took Gay's hand.

The captain, smiling, gave her a friendly touch on the shoulder. "Don't be frightened, little girl," he said. "I'm going to take care of you. I am the captain here. Don't be frightened."

"Th—thanks," stammered Gay weakly, and then, hurried by Ronald who held her hand, she ran, a boyish slim figure beside him, down the corridor to the farther cabin, and the door closed behind them.

Safe in their retreat, Gay faced Ronald Ingram defiantly, chin sturdily upturned, hands in pockets, eyes stubborn. She was not afraid of Ronald Ingram.

"What—what in the—the name of—heaven and earth—" he began wildly, "what in the name—of heaven—"

"You said that once," she interrupted coldly. "Don't be silly. And then she wilted suddenly. "D-don't scold me. I—I—feel just—terrible. I—I know I'm going to cry." Then, remembering Rand, she stiffened, faced him furiously again, drove the quiver from her lips. "Where is he," she cried, "where is Randolph Wallace? What have you done with him?"

"Oh!" Ronald Ingram looked white and sick all at once. "Oh, the Cavalier!—So that's it. I might have known. Fool that I was, for a moment I believed it—I thought—I believed you really did come—because you loved me—" His voice broke, and his eyes were smartingly bright.

But Gay was heartless. She caught his arm, held it in wrenching, strong young fingers. "You tell me," she commanded. "If you have hurt—one hair of his head—"

"I haven't seen him, Gay. I don't know anything about him. What has he to do with—us?"

Gay wilted again, broke into soft painful sobs. "Rand, Rand," she whispered through tears.

"Don't cry. Don't. He—he's all right. D-d-n him. I don't know where he is, but he's all right. Nothing ever—only us poor—devils—who—get—Don't cry, Gay." He put his arm about her tenderly, but Gay wept passionately and would not be comforted.

"What the dickens did you tell him all that for?" he broke in at last impatiently. "Nice mess you've got yourself into. Why didn't you keep your mouth shut, as I gave you a sign? Why do women always have to blab everything they know? You put yourself in his power by your own words. If he thought you were innocent, knew nothing, he would send you ashore. But now, knowing you have his life in your hands, you are his slave for life. You'll never get out of his sight as long as you live. He wouldn't dare let you go."

"I was afraid of it," she said faintly. "I knew I had made a mistake when I saw his eyes. I was very foolish. I was never—very wise," she admitted pathetically.

"No. But you are—very sweet," he said sadly.

"Help me, Ronald. Won't you help me? You said you—liked me. I only came because I thought—"

"You thought that chap—the Cavalier—"

"I thought you would kill him, so I came—"

"To intercede for him—to save him?"

"Alas, no, I had no hope. I thought you would let us die together."

"I will help you, Gay. It is putting my nose behind the bars to run the risk, but I will do what I can. We must think, we must plan it out. You must pretend to be in love with me—keep away from the captain—fear him more than the men. Gay, I am afraid he will insist that you marry me. I almost hope he will."

"Oh, no; oh, no."

"You could easily have it annulled. Gay, don't be foolish—marriage would protect you—until you reach home. I would not—bother you. Gay, watch the captain. Do not think he would stick at murder? Don't you know that when a man is facing exposure, capture, death, he is mad—quite mad? Well, you mean those things to the captain, Gay, exposure, capture, death. He will keep you in his web like a spider. Remember Blakely—"

"Blakely," she said sadly. "Poor Blakely!"

"You stand where Blakely stood. Watch the captain, and do not cross him, or you'll lie where Blakely lies. Blakely got in a mess—with a woman, too—no wonder Garman rules the women out; we've lost three good men because of them. Well, Blakely tried to swing Garman in to clear himself. You saw the end of Blakely. I tell you, Gay, watch the captain, and do not cross him."

"But, Ronald, I can't marry you. I—I love—I can't marry you."

"Sh!" He signaled her into silence, his manner changed. "I know, dear, don't be afraid of him. We were very wrong to do this, and put him in such a position, but he has promised to take care of you and he will keep his promise."

He indicated for her to take her cue.

"I—I am afraid, Ronald," she said faintly at first, but gaining courage as she spoke. "I—I wish I could go home. Oh, why did you let me come? Why didn't you warn me? He hates me. I know. He looked very fiercely at me. He is handsome, is he not? But I know he hates me."

A brisk tap at the door, and it opened. The captain entered, and one of the bravest of men, not without his smirk of satisfaction. His eyes upon Gay were agonious.

MEAT PIES

We all like occasionally a well made and nicely seasoned meat pie. Usually a meat pie is made to use up leftover meats, and thus to some it is not a welcome dish. However, not all meat pies are made from such meat and who is there who would refuse the delicious chicken pie? The old-fashioned Cornish pie which has sustained the miners for years in their hard work is prepared from fresh beef. It is so good that it is often repeated.

Cornish Pie.—Prepare a rich biscuit dough and line a deep pie plate or two with the mixture rolled out as thin as can be handled. Fill with inch cubes of fresh uncooked beef-steak cut into cubes, season well and add plenty of suet and butter for richness. Sprinkle over the meat a few tablespoonfuls of shredded onion, over that a layer of parboiled rutabaga thinly sliced and over that sliced uncooked potato. Cover with the crust after adding plenty of salt and butter or suet and leave a good vent for the steam to escape. Add no water and bake about two hours. Take from the oven and wrap in a cloth for ten minutes to steam and season the crust, then serve.

Veal Pie de Luxe.—Cut two pounds of cooked and seasoned veal into pieces. Have ready twenty plumped and pitted prunes, put them into a baking dish and add the veal, and a gravy made by blending two tablespoonfuls of butter, one cupful of hot water and some onion juice, a teaspoonful of minced parsley, and the same of currant jelly, with three tablespoonfuls of chopped raw ham. Cover with a rich pastry and bake.

Southern Lamb Pie.—Take a quart of cooked lamb, cut into small pieces, add two cupfuls of boiled potatoes diced, and one-half cupful of pecan meats; season with salt, pepper and minced parsley. Put into a baking dish, add three cupfuls of cream sauce, cover with a puff paste or a rich pastry, leaving vents for steam. Bake until brown.

Ham Pie.—To two cupfuls of finely minced ham, add two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of white sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of mustard and a dash of red pepper. Place in a pastry-lined dish and put in the mixture interspersed with one-third of a cupful of almonds and a hard cooked egg cut into slices. Bake without a cover and serve garnished with tomato aspic and chopped green peppers. Serve cold.

Savory Foods.

When one pays seventy cents a pound for fresh mushrooms for a dish, it is well to remind the cook to save the peelings and all the bits, after the mushrooms have been washed. These may be stewed and add flavor to white sauce or soup stock.

Mushrooms With Spinach.—Cook one-half pound of peeled and cleaned mushrooms cut into small pieces until tender in two tablespoonfuls of butter, then add a cupful of cream. Thicken with two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together; season with salt and pepper. Meanwhile cook one-quarter peck of spinach until tender in just the water which clings to it after the washing. Season well after it is cooked, drained and chopped and press into a buttered ring mold. Unmold on a hot plate and fill with the creamed mushrooms.

Orange Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of butter and add one cupful of sugar; blend well, then add alternately one-half cupful of orange juice and three cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add a well beaten egg and the grated rind of an orange. Mix and roll out, cut into any desired shape, decorate with a bit of candied orange peel and bake.

Fried Peanut Salad.—Blanch and chop a cupful of raw peanuts. Place in a frying pan with a tablespoonful of salad oil. Cook until the nuts are delicately browned, sprinkle with salt and cool on brown paper. Meanwhile scald and peel six tomatoes, chill and scoop out the centers or serve them sliced. Arrange on nests of lettuce and fill or heap on the slices the freshly cooked peanuts. Serve with a French dressing by adding a teaspoonful of sugar to each quarter of a cupful of the ordinary dressing.

Butternut Wafers.—Beat two eggs, add one ounce of chocolate melted, one-half cupful each of honey and brown sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda, two-thirds of a cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one cupful of chopped butternuts or walnuts. Drop by teaspoonfuls two inches apart and bake in a hot oven eight minutes.

Sunday School Lesson

Lesson for March 25

REVIEW—JESUS PROCLAIMS THE KINGDOM OF GOD

GOLDEN TEXT.—And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the Kingdom, and healing their sickness and every disease.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—Stories About Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Mark's Stories About Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—How Jesus Began His Work.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Early Ministry of Jesus.

The method of review must always be determined by the genius of the teacher, the grade of the school, and the aptitude of the pupil. For the senior and adult classes perhaps the most profitable method will be to summarize the facts of each lesson and to study the main teaching thereof. Since the great personality around which all the facts and teachings of the quarter gather is Jesus Christ, it ought not to be difficult to plan a review. Whatever plan is used, the teacher should have the matter thought out and assignment made to the different scholars a week ahead of time. The following suggestions are made:

Lesson for January 1. John the Baptist came in fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy announcing the advent of the Messiah. The leading lesson is that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God, as witnessed by John the Baptist and the Voice from the open heavens.

Lesson for January 8. Jesus taught with authority and demonstrated it by conquering demons, healing a fever, and cleansing a leper. Jesus Christ is able to save unto the uttermost, to deliver from all kinds of sickness and satanic powers.

Lesson for January 15. Jesus freely gave Himself to the task of healing the diseases of the people and forgiving their sins, and the leading lesson is that Jesus has not only power to heal the diseases of the body but to forgive sin, which is the cause of disease.

Lesson for January 22. Jesus lived His life in conformity with God's law. Conflict with the Jews over the matter of Christ's disregard of their laws of fasting and the Sabbath was due either to their failure to understand God's law or to its perversion. Human welfare can be realized only through conformity to God's law.

Lesson for January 29. With the increase of the fame of Jesus came increase of opposition. In spite of the opposition by His enemies He continued His mighty works in casting out demons and ministering to those in need.

Lesson for February 5. Jesus was misunderstood by His friends, His family and fellow townsmen, and violently opposed by the scribes and Pharisees. A spiritual nature is necessary in order to understand Christ.

Lesson for February 12. Jesus showed Himself the master teacher in picturing truth concerning His kingdom so as to conceal the truth from those who were not in sympathy with Him and by interpretation to be understood by His disciples.

Lesson for February 19. Jesus' deity was manifested in calming the storm-tossed sea and in healing the demoniac. Because of what Jesus is we should confide in Him.

Lesson for February 26. Jesus raised from the dead Jairus' daughter and healed the woman who had been afflicted for twelve years. Only a divine being could raise the dead.

Lesson for March 4. Jesus called twelve men and sent them forth to preach the gospel of the kingdom. Those sent forth were furnished with power to heal diseases.

Lesson for March 11. Christ had compassion upon the multitudes and created food to supply their hunger. Our small gifts and possessions, when placed at the Lord's disposal, are sufficient for any need.

Lesson for March 18. Christ denounced the empty forms and traditions of the Pharisees and showed that defilement can only come from the heart.

Eternal Thoughts

The thoughts of God are eternal thoughts. They are independent of time, independent of worlds. You set your life today into the doing of the will of God. After you have set your life into that life, it need never be changed. Let change come, let death come, we pass on still doing God's business for ever and for ever.—Alexander MacKenzie.

The Lord's Aid

I tried to build without the Lord, and lo! a tumbled pile of bricks upon the ground! I turned, and built with the Lord, and lo! the walls rise fair and firm, and the sky is their roof, and eternity is their foundation.—Amos R. Wells.

MOKENA M. E. CHURCH NOTES
The pastor will preach on the subject "The Christian's Opportunity", next Sunday evening. This is a message of pre-Easter import. We are gratified at the interest in our services as we approach Easter.

Our Easter services will be largely incorporated in our early morning worship meeting on Easter morning. The service will be at 7:30 a. m. and there will be an Easter sermon, special music, baptisms and an opportunity for uniting with the church. There will be no evening service. We hope for a large gathering to observe the early morning scene of the first Easter.

Our Sunday school has voted that we shall use the money which is usually expended for Easter candy and treats for Missionary purposes this year. We feel that this is very noble of our boys and girls.

Miss Loretta McGee of Chicago is visiting with her sister, Mrs. John Horras.

Mr. and Mrs. Tooley who have been spending the winter in Chicago, have returned to their Mokena home.

May Abolish old Caucus System In Frankfort Twp.

The old time caucus system is about to sing its swang song in Frankfort township. At the Republican caucus held at Mokena Saturday it was decided to put the question of abolishing the town caucus system up to the voters of the township on a separate ballot at the annual town election April 3rd. The reason why its abolishment is being sought is that the candidates must get the voters out twice to vote thus working a hardship on both the candidates and voters. It is hoped the old system will be voted out. The by petition system will most likely be used if the caucus system is voted out.

John Fitzer of New Lenox Dies

John Fitzer, 68 years old, prominent New Lenox township farmer and for more than 40 years a resident of Will County, died suddenly at his home a mile and a half east of New Lenox on the Lincoln highway Saturday morning.

Mr. Fitzer, who had been suffering from heart disease, milked the cows and fed the chickens on his farm that morning. Then he returned to the house and sat down in the dining room to smoke a cigar. His wife entered the room a short time later to find him dead.

In addition to the widow, four sons, Albert Fitzer of Frankfort township; William and Harry Fitzer of New Lenox, and Edward Fitzer of Joliet; two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Gullickson of New Lenox and Mrs. George Warning of Mokena survive. Also a brother, Henry Fitzer residing in Germany and 16 grand children.

The funeral was held from the home at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon to St. John's Evangelical church at Mokena, Rev. W. J. Cramer officiating. Burial in St. John cemetery south of Mokena.

Those attending the funeral from out of town were relatives and close friends from Evanston, Chicago and Elgin.

ASKS PAY INCREASE FOR NIGHT POSTAL WORKERS

Legislation designed to grant an increase of 10 per cent in the salaries of postoffice employees engaged in night work was unanimously ordered reported by the house post-office committee Tuesday. Embodied in the terms of a measure introduced by Representative E. W. Sproul of Chicago, the legislation proposes the establishment of a 10 per cent salary differential on all night work throughout the postal service. It is estimated that about 60 per cent of the postal service employees are engaged in night work, and that approximately 9,000 of the 14,000 Chicago employees will be benefited by the bill.

According to Mr. Sproul the legislation will bring an increase of about $1,000,000 in postal salaries in the Chicago office and a total appropriation of $6,800,000 is authorized to meet the new salary schedules throughout the service.
